

Thank you Heather for your very important update to the civil servants with regard to the letter to the LA City Attorneys office.

Sending best,

This photo is proof of the bang-up job C4 and their enforcement team is doing this weekend. And a perfect example of a dangerously flawed strategy. There should be no interim plan the places lives in danger and traps people in their homes on weekends and holidays.

I'd like to lock all the city execs and lax enforcers in Heather's home on a weekend to see how they like it. They could then deal with the careless drivers who leave and trap her in, smokers who say they want to burn those homes down, kids who pee on her walls, drones overhead, and then clean up the trash, condoms and joints left on the ground.

I totally understand why she and others are moving. The area is uninhabitable.

One last thought. Heather how are you even able to show your home for sale on weekends? Isn't the city causing you damages by:

- limiting your ability to show your home for sales on weekends (no parking/ no way to & from it)?
- presenting an unofficial chaotic parking lot in front of the home?
- the city knowingly posting signage to help GPS and send street vehicles and walkers to your residential area to create this situation?
- city enforcers giving warnings instead of ticketing

I would imagine all of this reduces the home's value and your ability to sell it. I know you have hundreds of pics (we all do) that show the increase in this problem since the signage was placed and Vista was balded.

Thank you Rio and Heather for your "boots on the ground" reporting.

It is my understanding from well placed sources that the alleged activities of both past and present civil servants acting on behalf of the various City of Los Angeles departments responsible for this catastrophic debacle will become unraveled shortly.
